AT HOME ON MAIN STREET: “RESIDENTIAL REVITALIZATION” BUILDS MOMENTUM

Upper-floor Main Street residential restoration in Little Falls is flourishing. Beautiful historic architecture, center city convenience with easy access to shopping and restaurants, and a good commercial district investment climate are driving forces behind this renaissance. What a difference five years and a new anchor grocery store can make!

Many different investment strategies and business plans are moving forward as both natives and newcomers alike sense opportunity. Historic district tax credits provide additional incentive for newer developers to follow in the wake of longtime Main Street landlords like Bob “Moose” Kurzbach and Larry Peruzzi.

Little Falls native Mike Molinaro purchased his 80 West Main Street building in 2013, and with the help of a commercial-district grant, he has transformed his two-story structure into a first-floor Tang Soo Do of Central New York karate studio and a spacious second floor apartment. Molinaro is motivated both by a desire to expand the teaching influence of his karate master and by a sense of community “giveback.”

In 2012 Little Falls native Richard Ruggiero obtained the long-neglected 542-546 East Main Street building that once housed the venerable Kandyland ice cream parlor. The veteran restaurateur has transformed the ground floor into Ruggiero’s Trattoria. Second-floor apartments are ready for occupancy, and work will soon begin on the third floor.

Hudson Valley transplant David Herodes purchased his 576-580 East Main St. four-story building in 2010 and has renovated several upper-floor apartments with the help of a combination grant.

Partway through renovations, Gavin Maloney surveys the Little Falls skyline from the second floor of 600 Main Street.

ABOUT LITTLE FALLS: “THINK LOCAL” REFLECTIONS

When Think Local Little Falls launched on Small Business Saturday in 2012, we didn't know how difficult the task ahead would be. Our first “SUPER THIRD THURSDAYS” were held in 2013. Our July event floundered under extreme heat, with one vendor reduced to tears as her chocolate melted. Heavy rains drowned out our October event. By 2014, the committee had lost heart, and merchants were disenchanted with our efforts.

But 2015 found the committee re-energized by the young women who joined us. Our Facebook presence was enhanced, our press releases were expanded, and two events were added to our schedule: a Midsummer Night's Picnic and a Pizza Challenge. What a difference one year had made.

Now in 2017, we find our events exploding! Our June Art Walk attracted 53+ artists at 40 locations and brought, we believe, 1,200 people out to Main Street.

“Teamwork is the ability to work together toward a common vision, the ability to direct individual accomplishments toward organizational objectives. It is the fuel that allows common people to attain uncommon results.”

—Andrew Carnegie

It has been said that it takes a village; for Think Local it has taken a community:

- ❖ dedicated committee members
- ❖ 80+ engaged Think Local business members
- ❖ a supportive City Government: the Mayor's office, the DPW, the Police and Fire Departments
- ❖ the Sponsorship of the Little Falls City Tourism Committee and the Little Falls Family YMCA
- ❖ a school district that allows us to utilize their backpack program to advertise children's events and whose teachers enrich our events
- ❖ supportive community groups
- ❖ Van Meter & Van Meter, who maintain our Shop Local website, write our grants, and provide endless guidance
- ❖ H&H Accounting and Little Falls Construction, who provide us with inexpensive printing
- ❖ countless individuals behind the scenes who do a myriad of tasks and,
- ❖ the boundless support and encouragement of Main Street First, including their efforts to organize a merchant's group before we emerged as Think Local

Please volunteer to help our efforts. We have numerous tasks, and we promise to find a task that suits both your interests and your time limitations. Contact us on our Think Local Little Falls Facebook page or email us at contact@mainstreetfirst.org.

MAYOR AND MAIN STREET FIRST MEET, DISCUSS COOPERATIVE EFFORTS

Little Falls is a city blessed with active citizen volunteers and engaged and responsive government representatives. Each of us has a role to play in making sure Little Falls is a healthy, vibrant community. There are several grassroots, not-for-profit organizations like Main Street First that bring people together around our common passion for Little Falls. These organizations help to channel our collective efforts into community projects – and these projects often overlap and require coordination with the City of Little Falls government.

With so much community engagement and so many great ideas for projects floating around, one of Main Street First's priorities this year is finding ways to make sure we're not duplicating efforts with other organizations or pursuing a path that's out of sync with the City's own agenda, budget, or priorities. If we want to make the most of our available resources – including people's time and energy – it's far better to be coordinated so we're all pulling in the same direction on projects.

The first step in achieving this is open communication. As a major step toward this goal, Main Street First was pleased to welcome Mayor Mark Blask to our July 31 meeting for what was mutually agreed will be just the first conversation in an ongoing dialogue with the City.

*"Coming together is a beginning;
keeping together is progress;
working together is success."
—Henry Ford*

The Mayor started the discussion with an overview of the City and its departments, staff, services, resources, and budget. "My number one job is keeping us fiscally sound," he said, noting some of the realities and challenges the City faces and the creativity and cooperation required to achieve this goal. He went on to discuss current areas of focus, including urban renewal, Vets Park improvements, shared services discussions with surrounding communities, flood recovery, and the master plan.

He also graciously acknowledged the work of organizations like Main Street First, Rotary, Preserve Our Past, the Beautification Committee, and others, and the countless volunteer hours and effort that go into creating community events and projects. In discussing how the City works with these various organizations and responds to requests for City involvement and support, he described his administration's approach as one of "How do we get to yes?"

Council member Justin Welyczko also attended the meeting and actively participated in brainstorming about potential projects and City needs. Mayor Blask assigned Welyczko as MSF's liaison for project-specific discussions and coordination with the City. It would appear based on this very positive meeting that Main Street First's goal of improving communication and coordination with the City is well under way!

MAIN STREET RESIDENTIAL REVITALIZATION

Before and after images of the new apartment on the second floor at 584 Main Street.

Proposal to return storefronts to the style of the original designs.

He has two solid ground-floor tenants where Carpeneti's Barber Shop was once located and will continue with additional upper-floor renovations over time.

In 2013 Philadelphia native and Preserve Our Past president David Dardzinski gained ownership of his four-story 582-586 East Main Street building, where Goldstein's Men's Shop was once located. He lives with his family in a restored second-floor apartment and is hard at work restoring other upper-floor apartments. Ground-floor commercial development is also being planned.

Gavin Maloney was drawn to Little Falls by its physical beauty, historic architecture, and friendliness. Maloney purchased his three-story 600-08 East Main Street building in 2014. He has solid first-floor commercial tenants where Bride's Cigar Store and poolroom once thrived, and is well along with quality second- and third-floor apartment restorations.

Main Street residential restoration has presented unique challenges to each of these developers: A common concern expressed is the lack of space for year-round tenant parking, and most support alternate-side winter parking along Main St.

Main Street residential restoration is part of a broader struggle that Little Falls faces with deteriorated housing stock as we continue to seek a brighter future as a walkable and sustainable community.

—Jeffrey Gressler

"If you aren't a city where people want to live, you aren't a city where businesses want to invest."
—Mayor Ron Littlefield of Chattanooga, Tennessee
